

Basic Information on Carnivores

Carnivores are predators, and can be very dangerous. Your clan can use meat, fur, hides, hair, sinew, and teeth from these carnivores. You might scavenge for these animals (find them already dead.)

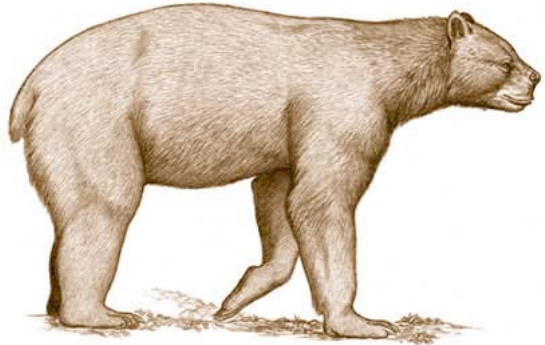

Dire Wolf

These are fierce animals. They hunt in packs, and they have long teeth and powerful legs.

Short-Faced Bear

These are large powerful beasts. They scare away other carnivores just because of their size. They are eleven feet tall when they stand up on their back legs.

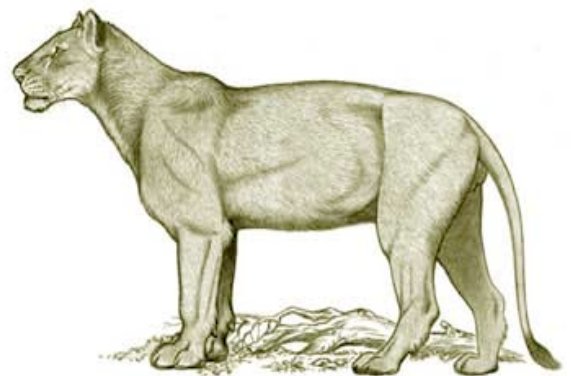

Sabertoothed Cat

This cat has strong muscles and legs. It hides and then leaps out to pounce on its prey. Sabertooths may live in groups (prides.)

Lion

This is the largest of the wild cats. Lions have a long tail which is about four feet long. They have a loud roar. They stand on tall boulders and look for their prey.

Basic Information on Herbivores

Your clan is leaving on a long journey, and there will many animals along the way. You hunt herbivores (plant eaters) for food, tusks, hair, fur, sinew, teeth, and hides.

Mammoth

This huge creature stands over 12 feet tall at its shoulder. It eats mostly grass. When its teeth wear out, it starves to death. Mammoths move in large herds. Sometimes mammoths get stuck in the mud, and are easier to hunt.

Ground Sloth

Sloths stand over six feet tall. They walk very slowly on the sides of their back feet and the backs of their front feet. They eat grass, leaves, bushes and tree branches. They live alone.

Horse

This animal lives in herds which gallop away quickly when they sense a predator. Horses eat mostly grass and roots.

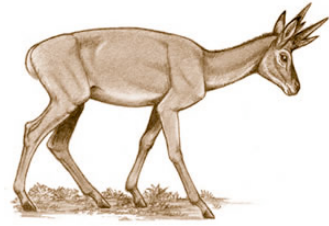

Bison

These animals live in herds and migrate (move to new areas) when the seasons change. They have two horns which they use to injure predators. They are quite dangerous to hunt.

Dwarf Pronghorn

Standing only two feet tall, the pronghorn lives in herds. They run swiftly to escape hunters and predators.

Camel

This animal eats any plants that are around. It is seven feet tall at its shoulder. It lives in small herds which are always on the look out for danger. There are very few camels left, because they are becoming extinct.

Caribou

These animals live in herds which come and go (migrate) depending on the seasons.

Caribou antlers can be used by people for tools and weapons.
